

Joe Till Guitars - Handmade in California

Welcome to Joe Till Guitars.

That would be me and these would be them. Thank you for visiting.

I think of this website as my online business card. A simple introduction, a chance to show you some of my work. Maybe even plant a seed in your imagination for down the road.

My real goal is to get you to contact me. That's where the whole process begins.

I build these guitars from start to finish. With or without custom orders. Which means that you're welcome to join in the design process at any step along the way to make it your own. Even my completed guitars can be customized to some degree.

Guitar Models

I currently offer two different models (with a third in the works) which can be modified endlessly: The TG-100 "Solo" and the TG-250 "Lady on the Beach". Options include your choice of necktypes: Setneck, Neck-Through-Body and Bolt-on. Neck shape and scale lengths are also for you to determine. But, I also build guitars without custom orders. I refer to them as 'Private Stock'. I try to note which ones are available throughout this website.

My whole thing is to take a great piece of wood and see how nice of a guitar I can make out of it. 14 years and almost 200 guitars later, I can "steer" a guitar's tone in ways I couldn't imagine in my first years as a builder. Through creative switching and the right set of pickups my guitars can cover all of the bases. Warm, fat, buttery, twangy, spanky, jangly, snarly... Did I forget anyone? Where's Swampy?

My semi-hollow method of construction allows for some beautiful acoustic resonance which translates well through the Seymour Duncan pickups I use - especially when in the singlecoil positions. You'll find some wonderfully familiar tones as well as wide ranges of undiscovered tones where you can run free of comparisons.

Thank you, again, for stopping by the Till Guitars website. I look forward to beginning a discussion with you. Please continue poking around my website, there's much more to be learned. And please write to me with any questions - including prices - at Info@TillGuitars.com.
